Anger with Emy Phelps, Maeve Gilchrist & Friends: Music for Our People, FreshScores: Live Music + Silent Film by Leyla McCalla, and 2017 FreshGrass Award winners The Lonesome Days and Emily Keener. FreshGrass, to be held at MASS MoCA on September 14-16, 2018, features bluegrass traditionalists and innovators on four stages and in every nook and cranny of the museum’s 28-building, 16-acre campus.

FreshGrass is three days of concerts, pop-up performances, instrument and industry workshops, and a bounty of Berkshire harvest-season food and spirits. The event takes over the entire museum campus, including courtyards, galleries, grassy fields, bridges, and every place in between. Berklee College of Music’s American Roots Music Program returns to lead workshops in which festival-goers fine-tune picking skills and learn from bluegrass veterans about the inner workings of songwriting, producing, and marketing music — events that often erupt in wild, rollicking jam sessions with festival-goers strumming alongside main-stage talent. FreshGrass-owned No Depression — the quarterly journal for roots music and online roots music authority — sets up an eponymous stage in the festival's inner courtyard, Compass Records brings its pop-up record store back to the center of the festival, and local luthiers demonstrate their craft.

Indigo Girls

“Trampled By Turtles, Yonder Mountain String Band, Indigo Girls, and FreshGrass favorites Ricky Skaggs and Kentucky Thunder — and that’s just for starters. FreshGrass consistently presents one of the liveliest and all-encompassing lineups of any music festival in the nation. Musical chops, songwriting innovation, community participation, great food and drink in a really beautiful arts complex... all that makes for a special weekend, and we are so proud to host this flagship event in North Adams,” says MASS MoCA Director Joseph Thompson.

The festival continues to nurture fresh takes on the tradition of bluegrass music with its FreshGrass and No Depression Awards, a music contest for unsigned talent judged by industry professionals, featuring up to $25,000 in cash prizes and recording time at Compass Records’ studio in Nashville for the winners. The annual award categories include band, banjo, and fiddle, and the No Depression Singer-Songwriter Award. Twenty finalists, five in each category, travel to the festival to perform in front of a live audience and a panel comprised of No Depression editors and artist judges. All finalists will perform throughout the weekend on pop-up stages and in the galleries, and award winners in each of the four categories will earn a main-stage slot at the 2019 FreshGrass Festival. The FreshGrass Award prizes are funded by the FreshGrass Foundation, whose mission is to promote, produce, and create innovative grassroots music and support emerging artists.

“Great music, strong community, preservation, and advancement will always be the guiding lights of FreshGrass,” says festival producer Chris Wadsworth. “With the success of the FreshGrass commissions, FreshScores, Awards, and the recent addition of the No Depression Singer-Songwriter Award, we offer our audience a singular festival experience and access to truly innovative ideas in grassroots music. The FreshGrass family has really grown over the last seven years With No Depression and this festival at its heart; we have gathered one of the largest and most vibrant roots music communities out there. And we still have a few tricks up our sleeves.”

Ricky Skaggs and Kentucky Thunder

FreshScores, a film and live music event commissioned by the FreshGrass Foundation to pair original music with enlivened silent films, returns in September with new screenings and performances during the festival, one by musician Leyla McCalla, with the full lineup to be announced this spring. In addition to the award, films, workshops, and the festival's legendary jam sessions — during which professional musicians pick and play among the crowd, many of whom bring their own instruments — festival events include camping (located a short distance from MASS MoCA's campus) and children's programming. Art is on view all weekend — admission to MASS MoCA's galleries is included with every festival pass — and festival-goers will enjoy dozens of pop-up concerts set among dramatically scaled exhibitions of contemporary art.

Advance 3-day adult tickets are now available for $115, with student tickets priced at $99, $46 for kids 7-16, and free admission for kids 6 and under. MASS MoCA members receive a 10% discount on festival ticket prices. Amplify your festival experience with a FreshPass ticket, now available for $350, which includes preferred seating or standing sections at the main stages, access to the FreshPass Lounge (free beer, snacks, juice to charge your phone and a festival concierge), meet-and-greet opportunities with FreshGrass artists, and an exclusive tour of the galleries with a museum curator. Single-day tickets may be offered closer to the event, as space allows. FreshGround camping is on sale now for $90, and $120 for RV spots. FreshGrass details will be updated on the festival website, freshgrass.com. FreshGrass is held rain or shine.
